And whereas it is further provided by the said section 32 that the power of applying any of those provisions shall not be exercised in the case of a country, other than a country which is a party to a Convention relating to copyright to which the United Kingdom is also a party, unless Her Majesty is satisfied that, in respect of the class of works or other subject-matter to which those provisions relate, provision has been or will be made under the laws of that country whereby adequate protection will be given to owners of copyright under that Act:

And whereas the countries mentioned in Part I of the First Schedule hereto are members of the Berne Copyright Union as parties to the Conventions relating to copyright therein respectively specified:

And whereas by virtue of paragraph 40 of the said Seventh Schedule the power to revoke the said Orders in Council conferred by section 32 of the Copyright Act, 1911, is to be treated as continuing in force:

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order applies the main provisions of the Copyright Act, 1956, for the benefit of the countries mentioned in the First Schedule. The countries mentioned in Part I of that Schedule are members of the Berne Copyright Union, and those mentioned in Part II are parties to the Universal Copyright Convention: the United Kingdom is a member of the Berne Copyright Union and is a party to the Universal Copyright Convention and the treatment accorded to the countries mentioned is designed to comply with the requirements of both the latest text of the Berne Convention (the "Brussels" Convention) and the Universal Copyright Convention.

The Order covers literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works, sound recordings, cinematograph films and published editions of literary, dramatic and musical works, but not sound or television broadcasts. Subject to certain qualifications, such works, recordings, films or editions, if first published in one of the countries mentioned, or if made by a citizen or subject of, or a person domiciled or resident in, that country, will enjoy copyright under the law of the United Kingdom as if they had been first published in the United Kingdom or had been made by a British subject or a person domiciled or resident in the United Kingdom. The term of protection to be enjoyed depends on that given in the country in question to British works.

The main qualifications are—

(a) no work or other subject-matter which has been published before the commencement of this Order is to enjoy copyright merely by virtue of first publication in a country which is a party to the Universal Copyright Convention but not a member of the Berne Copyright Union;

(b) the copyright in sound recordings given by this Order does not include performing or broadcasting rights except in the case of Australia, Canada, Denmark, the Federal Republic of Germany, India, Israel, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, South Africa, Spain and Switzerland.

A number of Orders in Council, applying the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911, to foreign countries are revoked, but without prejudice to any rights acquired thereunder.
